Applied Psychology

Art

Communication

Education

Health

Music

At the Steinhardt School of Culture, Education, and Human Development, we link research — in education, communication, the arts, and health — with action. We equip our graduates with the knowledge, insight, and experience necessary to address the challenges of our global society.

Our doctoral programs have been designed with the above mission in mind. We believe that learning occurs in the classroom through critical exploration and dialogue with peers and faculty, through intensive collaboration and mentorship with our faculty scholars, and in applied research and practice environments in New York City and throughout the world. With more than 30 research and clinical doctoral programs spanning the fields of culture, education, and human development, Steinhardt prepares the next generation of scholars, researchers, practitioners, and leaders.

Opportunities for Applied Research and Study

Nearly 250 full-time faculty members in 11 departments form the academic core of our School—teaching, undertaking research, leading curricular reform, developing innovative field-based projects, and providing leadership in professional organizations throughout the country. Their work is supported by a carefully selected corps of highly trained scholars and professionals who serve as research scientists and adjunct faculty.

Steinhardt doctoral students are an integral part of faculty-led research and field projects. Many of these projects are conducted under the auspices of prestigious centers, institutes, and labs, including the following:

- Arthur J. Nelson Jr. Human Performance Laboratory
- Center for Health, Identity, Behavior, and Prevention Studies
- Center for Research on Culture, Development, and Education
- Center for Research and Evaluation of Advanced Technologies in Education
- Center for Research on Teaching and Learning
- Child and Family Policy Center
- Institute for Education and Social Policy
- Institute for Globalization and Education in Metropolitan Settings
- Institute of Human Development and Social Change
- Metropolitan Center for Urban Education
- The Nordoff-Robbins Center for Music Therapy
- Speech-Language Hearing Clinic
- The Steinhardt Institute for Higher Education Policy
- Wallerstein Collaborative for Urban Environmental Education
