NYC-GE 2005  Cities and their Environment

Tuesday, 6:45-8:30 pm, Bldg: TISC  Room: LC1

Instructor: Raul Lejano  (lejano@nyu.edu)
Office: East Building 239 Greene Street, Room 424
Office Hours: 9-11 am Tuesdays and by appointment.

Catalogue Description: The course revolves around recognizing and assessing the complex interrelationships between the city and its environment. The central problem is the alienation of urban residents from nature. Different frameworks for integrative analysis of human-environment relationships are used—from human ecology to geography to resilience. The intent is to reconceptualize the city in ways that make these phenomena explicit, and to engage multiple publics.

Course Overview: Focusing on the city as its built form and the people who use it, we inquire into the interactions between the city, as defined, and its environment. The emphasis of this course is on material sustainability—i.e., the flows of material and energy between city and environment, the hazards caused by these natural phenomena, and the impacts of city on environmental quality. In so doing, we emphasize the notion of sustainability as equity and conservation and innovative practices to undo the alienation of city resident from nature. Some of the underlying theory begins with the Chicago School’s ideas about human ecology and adds subsequent concepts from the human geography, sustainability/resilience, and social ecology literatures. The course involves a sequence of ostensibly stand-alone topics; however, the intent is to look at each topic from the lens of city-environment relationships and multiple ways of knowing and to begin reconceiving the city and nature anew. In so doing, we build, in progressive fashion, our own theories of city-environment interactions and interventions in the same.

Course Objectives:
By the end of the course, students will be able to:
1. integrate scientific and social scientific aspects of urban environments.
2. analyze the interrelationships between city and environment.
3. apply a working understanding of the causes and global manifestations of urbanization in explaining these phenomena to a wider public.
4. identify and evaluate externalities associated with urban life.
5. assess the impacts of urbanization on the world’s resource base and the quality of the environment.
6. educate and dialogue with regulators, environmental professionals, and nonprofits in environmental quality issues.
7. design sustainability monitoring and communication plans for urban residents to learn the environmental implications of their personal and collective lifestyles and, in particular, find new ways to make tangible the relationships between people and environment.

Course Materials and Requirements: Course Reader.
A copy of the course reader will be kept in the reserve section of Babst Library.

Attendance and Lateness Policy: All students must attend class regularly. Your contribution to classroom learning is essential to the success of the course. We are a learning community and value everyone’s regular contribution to the learning process. Two (2) absences (with an explanation or not) will result in a grade deduction. The only exceptions will be cases of documented illness or other family emergency. Also, every student must make an effort to be in class on time. Attendance and tardiness will be counted in the calculation of your final grade.
Assignments/Requirements:

1. Midterm (Fulfills Objectives 1, 3, 6)
There will be an in-class midterm examination on March 11. The midterm exam will be essay format and will test your knowledge of the concepts discussed in class as well as the assigned readings. This will be a closed notes, closed books, silent exam. The intent of the midterm is to assess both the degree to which the student has understood the material as well as their ability to translate concepts into practical real-world action.

2. Group Project/Paper (Fulfills Objectives 2, 4, 5, 7)
Groups of 3 students will be assembled. The group project will entail selecting a suitable urban park or ecological site (suggestion: a different site for each group) and, conducting grounded research, study its resources and processes along with urban life around it, and design some activity or program that might help in bridging the separation of urban residents from their environments. More details and guidelines will be provided in class in Week 6.

3. Group Presentation (Fulfills Objectives 6, 7)
Groups will give a short presentation (Dec. 2 and 9, 20-30 minutes in length) on their group paper/project. The aim is for students to begin teaching about environment—in this case, communicating their research to the rest of the class. Students need not use media or powerpoint but they can arrange to do so.

4. Short Essay (Fulfills Objectives 2, 4, and 5)
The final requirement for the class will be a short essay (due May 14) that integrates the various perspectives on city-environment relationships and will allow the student to theorize about how to reduce the gap between city residents and their environment.

(i) Attendance and Participation:
Classroom meetings are meant to be as much dialogue as they are lecture. So being, these meetings are meant to be occasions for students to raise questions, discuss concepts and practical implications, and exchange new ideas. They are asked to come to class already having done the readings for that day and prepared to take up the subject matter beyond the readings. Each student is asked to participate in class discussions. In terms of rote information, half of the foundational concepts are to be found in the readings—the other half is part of the ‘magic’ that happens in class.

(ii) Midterm:
Students are expected to reflect an in-depth knowledge of the material taken up in the first six weeks of the class. This means digesting the readings and lectures and making the ideas in them operational in their own research and professional agendas. In grading the essays, the instructor will assess the degree to which the student has digested and can communicate the entire breadth of the knowledge taken up thus far and the ability to apply these concepts to practical situations in everyday personal and professional life. The midterm will be held during class hours on Oct. 21.

(iii) Group Project/Paper:
The group project is an opportunity to practice observational/site research and to reflect on relationships between urban ecological places and the urban residents around them. Guidance will be provided on conducting site-based observational research, and students are encouraged to employ these techniques. The design of a site activity or program should be based on the research done on the ground, and there should be some integration of concepts learned in class to this exercise, which is both practical and theoretical. The following, reference reading, will be provided by the instructor: Whyte, W. H. (1980). The Social Life of Small Urban Spaces. Students must form groups as individual projects will not be allowed.

(iv) Group Report:
Students should practice communicating their project results, learning effective ways of educating the rest of the class in 10-15 minutes. Effectiveness of communication and clear linkage of research to output are key elements of a good presentation. Groups will present their work in class on Dec. 2 and 9.

(v) Short Essay: The essay gives the student a chance to integrate the different perspectives studied in class and to develop her/his own notions about human-environment relationships. It is important for the student to have gone through all the material taken up in class, particularly the readings, and think in a more comprehensive manner. Importantly, the student is expected to have read and thoroughly understood all the post-midterm reading material and to reflect this in the essay. The paper is due on Dec. 15, and guidelines for the paper will be handed out two weeks earlier.

Academic Integrity and Plagiarism: All students must be familiar with the NYU Steinhardt School definition of plagiarism and the policy on academic integrity. The NYU Steinhardt Statement on Academic Integrity is available at: http://steinhardt.nyu.edu/policies/academic_integrity

The Steinhardt School defines plagiarism as follows:

Plagiarism, one of the gravest forms of academic dishonesty in university life, whether intended or not, is academic fraud. In a community of scholars, whose members are teaching, learning and discovering knowledge, plagiarism cannot be tolerated.

Plagiarism is failure to properly assign authorship to a paper, a document, an oral presentation, a musical score and/or other materials, which are not your original work. You plagiarize when, without proper attribution, you do any of the following:

- Copy verbatim from a book, an article or other media;
- Download documents from the Internet;
- Purchase documents;
- Report from other's oral work;
- Paraphrase or restate someone else's facts, analysis and/or conclusions;
- Copy directly from a classmate or allow a classmate to copy from you.

Grading Scale/Rubric:

Note: Aside from the criteria below, grades are also determined on a relative scale, where only the students with the best work receive an A. For example, often no more than 30% of the students in a class will receive an A (but this percentage may be lower or higher from year to year). Also note that ‘in-between’ grade categories (A-, B+, etc.) pertain and are defined in relative fashion to the grade descriptions below.
A—Outstanding Work
An "A" applies to outstanding student work. A grade of "A" features not simply a command of material and excellent presentation (spelling, grammar, organization, writing style, etc.), but importantly, sustained intellectual engagement with the material. This engagement takes such forms as shedding original light on the material, investigating patterns and connections, posing questions, and raising issues. Insights and findings will be based on evidence—whether archival, literature-originated, or from the field.

An "A" paper is excellent in nearly all respects:
It is well argued and well organized, with a clear thesis
It is well developed with content that is specific, interesting, appropriate and convincing
It has logical transitions that contribute to a fluent style of writing
It has few, if any, mechanical, grammatical, spelling, or diction errors
It demonstrates command of a mature, unpretentious diction

B—Good Work
A "B" is given to work of high quality that reflects a command of the material and a strong presentation but lacks sustained intellectual engagement with the material.
A "B" paper shares most characteristics of an "A" paper, but
It may have some minor weaknesses in its argumentation
It may have some minor lapses in organization and development
It may contain some sentence structures that are awkward or ineffective
It may have minor mechanical, grammatical, or diction problems
It may be less distinguished in its use of language

C—Adequate Work
Work receiving a "C" is of good overall quality but exhibits a lack of intellectual engagement as well as either deficiencies in the student's command of the material or problems with presentation.
A "C" paper is generally competent; it is the average performance. Compared to a "B" paper, it may have a weaker thesis and less effective development.
It may have serious shortcomings in its argumentation
It may contain some lapses in organization
It may have poor or awkward transitions
It may have less varied sentence structures that tend toward monotony
It may have more mechanical, grammatical, and diction problems

D or F—Unsuccessful Work
The grade of "D" indicates significant problems with the student's work, such as a shallow understanding of the material or poor writing.
It presents no clear thesis
It displays major organizational problems
It lacks adequate support for its thesis
It includes irrelevant details
It includes confusing transitions or lacks transitions altogether
It fails to fulfill the assignment
It contains ungrammatical or poorly constructed sentences and/or demonstrates problems with spelling, punctuation, diction or syntax, which impedes understanding

An "F" is given when a student fails to demonstrate an adequate understanding of the material, fails to address the exact topic of a question or assignment, or fails to follow the directions in an assignment, or fails to hand in an assignment. Pluses (e.g., B+) indicate that the paper is especially strong on some, but not all, of the criteria for that letter grade. Minuses (e.g., C-) indicate that the paper is missing some, but not all, of the criteria for that letter grade.

Incomplete Policy: Incompletes will only be granted in extreme cases such as serious illness or family emergency and only where almost all of the work for the semester has already been completed. A request for an incomplete must be in writing and documentation (such a note from a doctor or clergy) must be provided.

Accommodations for Students with Disabilities:
Any student attending NYU who needs an accommodation due to a chronic, psychological, visual, mobility and/or learning disability, or is Deaf or Hard of Hearing should register with the Moses Center for Students with Disabilities at 212 998-4980, 240 Greene Street, www.nyu.edu/csd.

Finally, please regularly check the NYU Classes course page on NYUHome (https://home.nyu.edu). Announcements, updates, the syllabus, and items of interest will be posted on NYU Classes. Copies of key course documents such as the syllabus and paper guidelines will be available on NYU Classes.

Statement on Academic Integrity

"Your degree should represent genuine learning."

The relationship between students and faculty is the keystone of the educational experience in The Steinhardt School of Culture, Education, and Human Development at New York University. This relationship takes an honor code for granted. Mutual trust, respect and responsibility are foundational requirements. Thus, how you learn is as important as what you learn. A university education aims not only to produce high quality scholars, but to also cultivate honorable citizens. Academic integrity is the guiding principle for all that you do; from taking exams, making oral presentations to writing term papers. It requires that you recognize and acknowledge information derived from others, and take credit only for ideas and work that are yours.

You violate the principle of academic integrity when you:
- Cheat on an exam
- Submit the same work for two different courses without prior permission from your professors
- Receive help on a take-home examination that calls for independent work
- Plagiarize

Plagiarism, one of the gravest forms of academic dishonesty in university life, whether intended or not, is academic fraud. In a community of scholars, whose members are teaching, learning and discovering knowledge, plagiarism cannot be tolerated. Plagiarism is failure to properly assign authorship to a paper, a document, an oral presentation, a musical score and/or other materials, which are not your original work. You plagiarize when, without proper attribution, you do any of the following:
- Copy verbatim from a book, an article or other media
- Download documents from the Internet
- Purchase documents
- Report from other's oral work
- Paraphrase or restate someone else's facts, analysis and/or conclusions
- Copy directly from a classmate or allow a classmate to copy from you

Your professors are responsible for helping you to understand other people's ideas, to use resources and conscientiously acknowledge them, and to develop and clarify your own thinking. You should know what constitutes good and honest scholarship, style guide preferences, and formats for assignments for each of your courses. Consult your professors for help with problems related to fulfilling course assignments, including questions related to attribution of sources.

Through reading, writing, and discussion, you will undoubtedly acquire ideas from others, and exchange ideas and opinions with others, including your classmates and professors. You will be expected, and often required, to build your own work on that of other people. In so doing, you are expected to credit those sources that have contributed to the development of your ideas.

Avoiding Academic Dishonesty

Organize your time appropriately to avoid undue pressure, and acquire good study habits, including note taking.

Learn proper forms of citation. Always check with your professors of record for their preferred style guides. Directly copied material must always be in quotes; paraphrased material must be acknowledged; even ideas and organization derived from your own previous work or another's work need to be acknowledged.

Always proofread your finished work to be sure that quotation marks, footnotes and other references were not inadvertently omitted. Know the source of each citation.

Do not submit the same work for more than one class without first obtaining the permission of both professors even if you believe that work you have already completed satisfies the requirements of another assignment.

Save your notes and drafts of your papers as evidence of your original work.
Disciplinary Sanctions
When a professor suspects cheating, plagiarism, and/or other forms of academic dishonesty, appropriate disciplinary action may be taken following the department procedure or through referral to the Committee on Student Discipline.

Departmental Procedure
The professor will meet with the student to discuss, and present evidence for the particular violation, giving the student opportunity to refute or deny the charge(s).

If the Professor confirms the violation(s), he/she, in consultation with the Program Director and Department Chair may take any of the following actions:
- Allow the student to redo the assignment
- Lower the grade for the work in question
- Assign a grade of F for the work in question
- Assign a grade of F for the course
- Recommend dismissal

Once an action(s) is taken, the professor will inform the program director and department chair, and inform the student in writing, instructing the student to schedule an appointment with the Associate Dean for Student Affairs, as a final step. Copies of the letter will be sent to the department chair for his or her confidential student file and the Associate Dean for Student Affairs. The student has the right to appeal the action taken in accordance with the School's Student Discipline Within the Steinhardt School of Culture, Education, and Human Development Student's Guide.

Referral to the Steinhardt Committee on Student Discipline
In cases when dismissal is recommended, and in cases of repeated violations and/or unusual circumstances, faculty may choose to refer the issue to the Committee on Student Discipline for resolution, which they may do through the Office of the Associate Dean for Student Affairs.

The Steinhardt School Statement on Academic Integrity is consistent with the New York University Policy on Student Conduct, published in the NYU Student Guide.

New York University Anti-Harassment Policy
New York University is committed to maintaining a learning and working environment that is free of bias, prejudice, and harassment - an environment that supports, nurtures, and rewards career and educational advancement on the basis of ability and performance. Harassment based upon race, gender and/or gender identity or expression, color, creed, religion, age, national origin, ethnicity, disability, veteran or military status, sex, sexual orientation, marital status, citizenship status, or any other legally protected basis is prohibited by law and undermines the character and purpose of the University. Such harassment is illegal and against University policy, and will not be tolerated.

Students in the Steinhardt School may refer instances of harassment to the Associate Dean for Student Affairs, Pless Hall, 2nd Floor, 212 998 5065. To learn more, visit www.nyu.edu/eo/anti-harass-policy.pdf

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY GUIDELINES FOR COMPLIANCE WITH THE FAMILY EDUCATIONAL RIGHTS AND PRIVACY ACT (FERPA)
Inquiries may be submitted to ferpa@nyu.edu.

Among its several purposes, the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 (FERPA) was enacted to protect the privacy of students' education records, to establish the rights of students to inspect and review their education records, and to provide students with an opportunity to have inaccurate or misleading information in their education records corrected. FERPA also permits the disclosure by an institution without a student's prior consent of so-called directory information about that student. Students have the right to file complaints with the Department of Education's Family Policy Compliance Office concerning alleged failures by an institution to comply with FERPA. In accordance with the statute and the FERPA regulations issued by the Department of Education, New York University ("NYU" or "the University") has adopted the following policies and procedures.

"Student" includes any person with respect to whom the University maintains an education record, whether or not that person is currently in attendance. Persons who have not been in attendance are not "students" entitled to review their records. Thus, persons who have applied to and been admitted by the University, but who have not yet begun to attend classes, are not eligible to review their records. Also, students who, while attending one school or college of NYU, have applied to another NYU school or college, are not entitled to review records of the school or college to which they are applying until they have been accepted and are in attendance at that school or college.

"Education records" available for review are defined as those records, files, documents, and other materials that contain information directly related to a student and that are maintained by the University. The form in which the information is maintained by the University does not matter; for example, computerized or electronic files, audio or video tape, photographic images, film, etc., with such information are "education records". This includes communications and documents distributed or received by e-mail, or other similar University systems, which are retained in these systems, either by the sending or receiving party.

In general, records maintained by the University that are available for student review are: recorder's docket, admissions docket, departmental docket, placement docket (if student has a file there), financial aid docket (if student has applied for aid), advisement and counseling docket from the various schools, and bursar's docket. Not all of these categories of records are maintained for any given student, and there may be others. Students have the right to review original documents from their files.

Under FERPA and its related regulations the following types of University records are not "education records" and are, therefore, not available for student review:

Personal notes or records (including computerized files) that are kept by an individual University employee solely in her or his possession, are used only as a personal memory aid, and are not accessible or revealed to others, except to a temporary substitute. Records that relate to an individual who is employed by the University and that (a) are made and maintained in the normal course of business, (b) are not available for use for any other purpose, and (c) relate exclusively to the individual in that individual's capacity as an employee. This exception does not apply to records that relate to a student in attendance at the University who is employed as a result of his or her status as a student.

Medical and psychiatric records created, maintained, and used only in connection with the treatment of a student and that are not available to anyone other than the persons providing such treatment. Such records can be personally reviewed by a physician, psychologist, or other appropriate health professional of the student's choice. (Students who have received treatment form the University Health Center or from the University Counseling Services may contact those offices to inquire concerning access to patient information.)

Records that contain information relating to an individual who no longer is a student at the University and that are not directly related to the individual's attendance as a student, i.e., alumni records.

Grades or peer-graded papers before they are collected and recorded by an instructor.

Also, the University does not have to permit a student to review education records that are:

Financial records of the parents of a student.

Confidential letters and statements of recommendation placed in the education records of a student (a) prior to January 1, 1975, as long as they are used only for the purposes for which they were specifically intended; and (b) after January 1, 1975, if the student has waived access to such letters and recommendations and if such letters and recommendations relate to the student's admission to an educational institution (including admission to NYU), application for employment, or receipt of an honor or honorary recognition (see Section V, Waivers).

At NYU, FERPA is administered by Associate Provost Barnett W. Hamberger (note exceptions below), the Office of the Associate Provost is located at 194 Mercer Street, Room 403F, 212-998-2310. Except as noted below, requests to review records, for copies of the statute or its attendant regulations, or for additional information concerning FERPA, should be directed to the Office of the Associate Provost.

Current and former NYU students wishing to review records must complete a record request form in person at the office of the Associate Provost, Mr. Hamberger. The office is located at 194 Mercer Street, Room 403F. The request should specify what records are to be inspected. Upon receipt of a request, the record review officer notifies the office(s) maintaining the requested record(s), arranges for the transmittal of the record(s), sets up an appointment for the student's review of such records, and supervises the review. Students are provided with this review opportunity within a reasonable time, not to exceed 45 days from the date of receipt of the request by the appropriate record review officer. If any material or document in the education record(s) of a student includes information on more than one student, the student may inspect and review or be informed of only that part of the material or document relating to herself or himself. Students may duplicate materials other than NYU transcripts at a cost of 10 cents per page. Students will not be permitted to remove the original record(s) from the record review office. At the conclusion of the review the record(s) is returned to the originating office(s).

If a student is physically unable to come to the appropriate record review office, and if this inability would effectively deny the student access to her or his records, the student may obtain a record request form by calling or writing to the appropriate record review officer. The student should then return the completed request form by mail to the record review officer. The officer will make special arrangements for the review.

A student may waive his or her right to access to confidential recommendations for any of the following: admission to an educational institution; employment; receipt of an honor or honorary recognition. Waiver forms are available from each Dean's Office and in Departmental Offices. The waiver must be in writing and must be signed by the student. If a student waives her or his right to access, the recommendations must be used solely for the purposes for which they were intended, and, if the student so requests, the University will give her or him the names of the individuals who made the recommendations. Recommendations mailed to third parties should include a copy of the signed waiver, so that the third party is aware that the student has waived access to the recommendation, and, hence, cannot obtain access to it from the third party's records in the future. The University does not have the right to make the student's waiver a condition to the student's receipt of any service or benefit from the University. Waivers may be revoked by the student, but the revocation will not enable the student to gain access to confidential recommendations made while the waiver was in effect.

If a student believes that any of the education records relating to her or him contain information that is inaccurate, misleading, or in violation of her or his rights of privacy, she or he may ask the University to correct or delete such information. The student may also ask that additional explanatory material be inserted in the record. Requests for amendment of a record or the addition of explanatory material should be submitted at the conclusion of the record review on form PL 93-3803, available from the appropriate record review officer. The reasons for the request should be set forth on the form and should clearly identify the part of the record the student wants changed and specify why it is inaccurate or misleading. There is no obligation on the part of the University to grant such a request. If the University declines to amend the records as requested by the student, it will so inform the student, and the student may request that explanatory material be inserted into the record or may request a hearing (see Section VII). The right to challenge the contents of an educational record may not be used to question substantive educational judgments that have been correctly recorded or to contest the assignment of a grade. Grades given in the course of study include written evaluations that reflect institutional judgment of the quality of a student's academic performance.

If the University declines to amend a student's record as he or she requests, the student has the right to a hearing. The hearing will be held within a reasonable time after the University receives the student's request for it. The hearing may be conducted by any person, including an official of the University, who does not have a direct interest in its outcome. At the hearing, the student may be assisted or represented by one or more individuals, including legal counsel, of the student's choice at the student's expense. Within a reasonable time following the hearing, the hearing officer will make her or his recommendation(s) in writing to the President (or his designee). This recommendation, and the written decision of the President or his designee on behalf of the University, will be based solely on the evidence presented at the hearing and will include a summary of that evidence and the reasons for the conclusions reached. If the decision of the President or his designee is to amend the record, the record will be amended and the student will be given written notice of the amendment. If the decision of the President or his designee is not to amend the record, the student will be informed that he or she has the right to place a written statement in his or her record, which will be kept in the file as long as the file itself is kept. The statement may comment on the contested portion of the file or say why the student disagrees with the decision of the President or his designee, or do both. If the contested portion of the file is disclosed to anybody, the student's statement will also be disclosed.

Prior to disclosing personally identifiable information from a student's education records, the University will obtain the student's signed and dated written consent to such disclosure, unless consent is not required by law. The student's written consent must "specify the records that may be disclosed; state the purpose of the disclosure; and identify the party or class of parties to whom the disclosure may be made." In the case of certain offices, such as the career services or preprofessional committees, students can sign a blanket consent for disclosure of specified records to "appropriate third parties." Signed and dated written consent "may include a record and signature in electronic form that identifies and authenticates" the student as the source of the consent and indicates the student's "approval of the information contained in the electronic consent." Such consent is not needed for disclosure of directory information (see Section IX below) or for disclosure:

to the student;
to school officials with legitimate educational interests; school officials having a legitimate educational interest include any University employee acting within the scope of her or his University employment, and any duly appointed agent or representative of the University acting within the scope of his or her appointment.
to accrediting, testing, and similar organizations;
to parents of dependent students (see Section XI below);
to certain federal, state, and local officials and authorities, in each case as specified in Subpart D of the FERPA Regulations, 34 C.F.R. Part 99;
in connection with financial aid for which the student has applied or received, under the conditions set forth in the FERPA Regulations.
to comply with a subpoena or judicial order, provided that the University attempts to notify the student of the order or subpoena before complying with it (unless, in the case of a Federal grand jury subpoena or other subpoena issued for a law enforcement purpose, the subpoena orders that such notification not be made), or to provide information to the Attorney General of the United States or to his designee, without notification to the student, in response to a court order issued in connection with the investigation or prosecution of terrorism crimes as specified in Title 18, U.S. Code, sections 2331 and 2332 (g) (5) (B). Permission is not needed for disclosure to a court when the University has initiated legal action against a parent or student or when necessary for the University to defend itself when a parent or student has initiated action against it.
in an emergency where there is an articulable and significant threat to the health or safety of a student or other individual, to appropriate parties whose knowledge of the information is necessary to protect the health or safety of the student or other individuals. In such cases, the University will maintain a record of the articulable and significant threat which formed the basis for disclosure and the parties to whom the information was disclosed. When forwarding education records to the officials of another institution (a) in which a student seeks or intends to enroll if that institution requests such records, or (b) if the student is enrolled in, or receiving services from, that institution while she or he is attending NYU, provided that the disclosure is for purposes related to the student’s enrollment or transfer. The student's consent is not required for such disclosure, nor is any other notice of the transfer required, although a copy of each record so disclosed will be provided to the student if the student asks for it.

of the final results of any University disciplinary proceeding relating to a crime of violence or non-forcible sex offense allegedly perpetrated by a University student to an alleged victim of that crime or offense, regardless of whether or not it is concluded that a violation was committed. The consent of the alleged student perpetrator is not a condition to this disclosure.

of the final results of any University disciplinary proceeding reached on or after October 7, 1998 if it is determined that a student is an alleged perpetrator of a crime of violence non-forcible sex offense and the student has committed a violation of the University’s rules or policies with respect to the allegation. The names of other students, including the victim or witnesses, may not be disclosed without their prior written consent.

to the parent of a student regarding the student’s violation of any Federal, State, or local law, or any rule or policy of the University, regarding the use or possession of alcohol or a controlled substance, provided that the University has determined that the student has committed a disciplinary violation with respect to that use or possession and the student is under the age of 21 at the time of the disclosure.

In the case of certain offices, such as the career services or preprofessional committees, students can sign a blanket consent for disclosure of records to "appropriate third parties."
The University will maintain a record of each request for and disclosure of personally identifiable information from the education records of a student to persons outside the University for as long as such records are maintained. The record will indicate the parties who have requested or obtained the personally identifiable information and the legitimate interest these parties had in requesting or obtaining the information. The student has the right to inspect and review this record of requests. The requirement to keep records of requests does not apply to: disclosures to the student; disclosures made pursuant to the written consent of the student; disclosures to University employees determined by the University to have legitimate educational interests; disclosures of directory information; or disclosures made in compliance with a Federal grand jury or other law enforcement subpoena which orders that the existence or the contents of the subpoena or the information furnished not be disclosed to the student.

In instances where disclosure of personally identifiable information from an education record to a third party is permitted (see above), the third party is subject to the requirements of the FERPA Regulations with respect to possible redisclosure of that information and the University must so inform the third party.

When a student gives his or her written consent to the disclosure of personally identifiable information from his or her records to persons outside the University, the student may request that the University provide him or her with a copy of any records thus disclosed, and the University will do so.

The purpose of the consent form is to permit the student to have some control over the disclosure of personally identifiable information in her or his education records. The fact that a student signs a consent form, whether specific or "blanket," does not, however, bind the University to make the student's records available to the third party or parties who have obtained the student's consent to their review of his or her files. The student's records are still the property of the University and, even if a consent has been signed, the University will exercise its discretion in each case by disclosing to the third party only such information, records, and files, if any, as the University deems appropriate in light of the reason that the third party is seeking access to the student's records. Because of this, all consents obtained directly from students by third parties must include a specification of the records to be disclosed, the purposes of the disclosure, and the person or groups of persons to whom disclosure may be made. The original signed consent must be provided to the University by the third party at the time the request for access is made. The University will retain the original consent. Records to which students are denied access because they are not "education records" usually will not be made available to an outside party. In addition, the third party generally will not be permitted to make copies of records to which he or she is granted access, even if the consent signed by the student explicitly gives permission for such copies to be made. If the student wishes the third party to have copies of documents in her or his file, or if there are other documents to which the third party has not been granted access by the University but which the student wishes the third party to have, the student may copy those records (see Section IV above) and provide such copies to the third party directly.

The University has designated the following student information as "directory information." Directory information may be disclosed for any purpose, at the discretion of the University, except as provided below.

Name, dates of attendance, NYU school or college, class, previous institution(s) attended, major field of study, full or part-time status, degree(s) conferred (including dates), honors and awards (including dean's list), past and present participation in officially recognized activities (including positions held and official statistics related to such participation and performance), e-mail address and NetID. [Important. See notes (1) and (2) below.]

(1) E-mail address and NetID are directory information for internal purposes only and will not be made available to the general public except in specified directories from which students may opt out.

(2) Under federal law, address information, telephone listings, and age are also considered directory information for military recruitment purposes. Address refers to "physical mailing address" but not e-mail address.

Currently enrolled students may refuse to permit disclosure of this information. To do so, a student enrolled in any school other than the College of Dentistry, School of Medicine, School of Law, or Stern School of Business - Graduate Division should complete a form requesting nondisclosure at the Office of the University Registrar, 25 West 4th Street, and submit it to that office. A hold will be placed on the release of directory information filed with the University Registrar, which will remain in effect until the student files a written request to remove it. Students in the College of Dentistry, School of Law, School of Medicine, or Stern School of Business - Graduate Division should complete the nondisclosure form available in the Recording Office of the school in which he or she is enrolled. Students in these schools will be informed if they must file a new nondisclosure form each academic year. A request not to disclose directory information applies to the entire category of such information and cannot be selective with regard to specific items defined as directory information. Similarly, a request not to disclose directory information applies to all individuals and organizations, subject to the exceptions stated in Section VIII above, and cannot be selective with regard to specific individuals or organizations.

A student may not use the withholding of directory information to prevent the University from disclosing or requiring the student to disclose his or her name, identifier, or institutional e-mail address in a class in which the student is enrolled.

Students should consider very carefully the effect of a decision to withhold directory information. If that decision is made, any requests during that academic year for such information from non-University persons or organizations will be refused (subject to the exceptions stated in Section VIII above or unless the student has subsequently removed the hold by notifying the Registrar or appropriate Recording Office in writing). If a student does not specifically request the withholding of directory information by filing the appropriate University form, as indicated above, the University assumes that he or she approves of the disclosure of such information. The University disclaims any and all liability for inadvertent disclosure of directory information designated to be withheld.

Authorized representatives of government agencies may occasionally ask to see a student's education records. Such requests are usually made when a student or former student has applied for a government job. The government agent should be referred to the appropriate record review officer, as indicated in Section IV above. Generally, the University will handle such requests in the same manner as other requests for access to student records by third parties (see Section VIII), provided that the government agent shows official identification and provides a signed release from the student, a copy of which will be retained by the University.

If a government agent has a subpoena, she or he should be referred to the Office of Legal Counsel. Under the FERPA regulations, the University is required to make a reasonable attempt to notify the student prior to complying with the subpoena unless, in the case of a subpoena issued for law enforcement purposes, the subpoena orders that such notification not be made. (See Section VIII above.)

Occasionally, a parent will request information from a student's education records or a copy of the student's transcript. Under FERPA, institutions are not required to disclose such information to the student's parent, but may do so if: (a) there is written consent to the disclosure from the student, or (b) the parent requests the information in writing and provides evidence that the student is his or her dependent under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (See Section VIII above.), or (c) the student has violated a Federal, State, or local law or any rule or policy of the University regarding the use or possession of alcohol or a controlled substance, provided that the University has determined that the student has committed a disciplinary violation with respect to that use or possession and the student is under the age of 21 at the time of the disclosure.

If the procedure indicated under (b) is followed, the University's practice is to ask the parent to establish dependency by providing a copy of her or his latest federal income tax return. Confidential information on the return may be expunged, provided that the information that remains is sufficient for the University to ascertain that the parent has claimed the student as a dependent. Further, it is also the practice of the University (except in a health or safety emergency) to inform the student of such a request and of the information requested before deciding whether to provide the requested information to the parent. "Parent" is defined by FERPA as "a natural parent, a guardian, or an individual acting as a parent in the absence of a parent or guardian."

The University will inform students of these Guidelines and of their rights under FERPA and the Department of Education's FERPA regulations by placing a notice about them on the website of the Registrar. For Annual Notice, go to http://www.nyu.edu/registrar/university-policies/ferpa.html.
As a nonsectarian, inclusive institution, NYU policy permits members of any religious group to absent themselves from classes without penalty when required for compliance with their religious obligations. The policy and principles to be followed by students and faculty may be found here: The University Calendar Policy on Religious Holidays.

This autumn is a time of important religious observance for many of our students who celebrate the Jewish High Holy Days and Sukkot holiday in September and October, and the Muslim holiday of Eid al Adha in October. Some students may miss a significant amount of class early in the semester, as they choose to observe some or all the holidays.

Notwithstanding the University's supportive approach to these matters, some students may feel uncomfortable alerting their professors to upcoming absences related to religious observance. As we start the new semester, I thank you for your continued cooperation in creating an atmosphere of understanding and accommodation in response to our students' commitment to religious observance.
