Undergraduate Advisement Guide
DEPARTMENT OF MEDIA, CULTURE, AND COMMUNICATION
ACADEMIC YEAR 2017 – 2018
The Department of Media, Culture, and Communication’s academically rigorous Bachelor of Science degree is grounded in the liberal arts, providing students with the necessary tools to understand the sociological, political, and cultural aspects of media technologies and systems.

The program’s internationally recognized faculty encourage MCC majors to think deeply and broadly about culture and media using theoretical and historical frameworks. The components of the major include core courses in theory and analysis, and upper-level courses in two of the following fields of study: Global and Transcultural Communication; Images and Screen Studies; Interaction and Social Processes; Persuasion and Politics; and Technology and Society. A majority of MCC students take advantage of study opportunities abroad to cultivate a deeper knowledge of the global and transnational issues associated with the production, circulation, and reception of contemporary media.

Situated in the heart of Greenwich Village, the department takes its location in New York City as both an inspiration and a resource. With frequent guest lectures and public events, MCC serves as an intellectual hub for visiting scholars, artists, media practitioners, and industry experts.

Faculty

The Department is home to 37 full-time professors who pursue original research and participate in a wide array of international scholarly endeavors. As evidence of the department’s interdisciplinary and global perspective, the core faculty represents 13 different academic disciplines and nine different countries of origin.

Their areas of expertise include global media, media history, visual culture, media activism, technology studies, digital media, immigration and public discourse, music, architecture, social networks, youth and media, race and political communication, gender, Middle East, South Asian, and Latin American media.

We encourage undergraduates to read the MCC faculty profiles online: steinhardt.nyu.edu/mcc/faculty

The Department offers several types of advising:

Primary Advisor Meetings
Students will be assigned a primary advisor based on the section of New Student Seminar (NSS) they register for during the first semester of their career at Steinhardt. Primary advisors guide and assist students in navigating their academic pursuits. Please note, however, that monitoring degree progress and seeking advisement is always the responsibility of the student.

Skype Meetings
As many students elect to complete a semester abroad or travel home to countries outside the US on school breaks, our advisors are available to video chat with students through Skype. It is important that students stay in contact with the department and receive quality advising even when traveling and studying internationally.

Walk-in Advising
If a student needs to address a basic registration issue, such as completing a drop/add form, discussing a pass/fail option, turning in an internship registration form, or obtaining a course permission form, he or she does not need to make an appointment with their primary advisor. Basic registration issues can be addressed through walk-in advising. Between the hours of 10:00 and 4:00 pm, Monday through Friday, a walk-in advisor will be on duty in the department.

E-mail Advisement
MCC advisors are available via email at comm.advisors@nyu.edu. Students should use this to pose basic questions that can be answered quickly and concisely. For in-depth questions, students should schedule a primary advisor meeting.

Advisement Resources
Our department website is a continuously updated source of information that includes details on internships, course descriptions and syllabi, study abroad links, professor profiles, events, advisement forms and more. Bookmark the site and consult it regularly to stay informed.

Steinhardt Orientation Leaders
The Orientation Leader Program promotes student involvement by connecting new students to student mentors. Trained and supervised by our academic advisors, Orientation Leaders are able to assist new students in finding accurate registration and advisement information. They act as teacher’s assistants in New Student Seminar, hold weekly mentoring office hours, and represent MCC at admissions and recruitment events.

Minors and Double-Majors
Some students choose to complement their primary major in MCC with a minor or second major in another school or department within NYU. Students must consult with both their MCC advisor and an advisor in their potential minor/double-major department to determine if completing supplemental coursework will be a valuable and practical addition to their current academic program.
Degree Requirements

In their freshman and sophomore years, students take MCC core courses and courses in the Liberal Arts Core, and begin to focus on fields of study within the MCC major. In their junior and senior years, students complete restricted electives and two fields of study.

MCC has three core courses. Majors must take all three; minors take any two. Effective Fall 2014, students taking an MCC core course must earn a B- or better to use that course toward the major or minor. (MCC core courses taken before Fall 2014 are exempt from this grade requirement.) If a student receives a grade lower than a B-, that student may retake the course once to improve the grade, but only one retaken course is allowed. Additionally, students may only retake a course once. This means that students receiving below a B- in two or more MCC core courses (even if taken in the same semester) will have to explore with their advisor other options for majoring at NYU.

Academic Progress
Majors are expected to maintain satisfactory academic progress. Students with a cumulative GPA of 2.7 or lower will be reviewed every semester by the Steinhardt Faculty Committee on Student Progress.

Academic progress is reviewed only after a student has enrolled in at least 12 credits (cumulative—not per term).

- Students with two or more incompletes, and/or N grades during one semester will be considered as not making satisfactory progress.
- Students who have two consecutive probationary terms or three non-consecutive probationary terms will be subject to dismissal.
- Students whose matriculation has been terminated because of academic insufficiency may apply for re-admission after one year’s lapse of time.

Please consult the Steinhardt website for more information: steinhardt.nyu.edu/registration/standards

MCC Core Courses

Introduction to Media Studies
MCC-UE 0001
Introduces students to the study of contemporary forms of mediated communication. The course surveys the main topics in the field and introduces students to a variety of analytical perspectives. Issues include the economics of media production; the impact of media on individual attitudes, values, and behaviors; the role of media professionals, and the impact of new media technologies.

History of Media and Communication
MCC-UE 0003
This course introduces students to the history of media and communication and to the stakes of historical inquiry. Rather than tracing a necessarily selective historical arc from alphabet to Internet or from cave painting to coding, the course is organized around an exploration of key concepts such as literacy, publicity, temporality, visual culture, networks and information.

Media and Cultural Analysis
MCC-UE 0014
An introduction to the theoretical approaches and methods used to analyze the content, structure, and contexts of media in society. Students will develop a familiarity with concepts, themes, and approaches in media criticism, and they will develop an ability to adopt, adapt, and employ a variety of methodologies for the analysis of mediated communication.

Additional Requirements

New Student Seminar
SAHS-UE 1 (0 Credits)
New Student Seminar (NSS) is a required first semester course for new undergraduate students (both freshmen and transfers). It orients students to the University, NYU Steinhardt, and MCC. Students are introduced to the nature of higher education, student life on and off campus, and to their major requirements. In class, students work together under the guidance of their advisor and peer advisor to actively explore their roles as students in this diverse and global academic community and as future professionals.

Senior Media Seminar
MCC-UE 1200 (4 Credits)
A culminating course integrating models of interpretation derived from the liberal arts with the analytical tools developed in media and communication studies. The course reflects current research interests within the Department and encourages students to explore emerging issues in fields such as media and globalization, social interaction, professional ethics, and the interaction between audiences and texts. Topics vary by semester and course instructor. This course is taken when a student’s credits reach senior status.

Restricted Electives
Restricted Electives are courses related to the study of media, culture, and communication and are designed to provide students with the ability to explore applied or practical courses in their field of interest or to further explore an area of theoretical interest.

Students are required to take 12 credits of Restricted Electives. Students who declare a minor or second major may not double count these required courses towards specialization electives. The only exception to this is a second major in Journalism or minor in Producing. Please note that Restricted Electives cannot be taken pass/fail.

For a full list of programs applicable to the requirement, please refer to page 5.

Academic Integrity

Academic integrity is the guiding principle for all that one does, from taking exams, making oral presentations to writing term papers. It requires that students recognize and acknowledge information derived from others, and take credit only for original ideas and work. Students violate the principle of academic integrity when they:

• Cheat on an exam;
• Submit the same work for two different courses without prior permission from professors;
• Receive help on a take-home examination that calls for independent work;
• Plagiarize.

Plagiarism, one of the gravest forms of academic dishonesty, whether intended or not, is academic fraud. In a community of scholars, whose members are teaching, learning, and discovering knowledge, plagiarism cannot be tolerated.

Plagiarism is failure to properly assign authorship to a paper, a document, an oral presentation, a musical score and/or other materials which are not original work. One plagiarizes when, without proper attribution, one does any of the following:

• Copy verbatim from a book, article, or other media;
• Download documents from the Internet;
• Purchase documents;
• Report from another’s oral work;
• Paraphrase or restate someone else’s facts, analysis and/or conclusions;
• Copy directly from a classmate or allow a classmate to copy.

Avoiding Academic Dishonesty

To help avoid academic dishonesty, students should:

• Organize their time appropriately to avoid undue pressure and acquire good study habits, including note taking.
• Learn proper forms of citation. Check with professors for their preferred style guides. Directly copied material must always be in quotes; paraphrased material must be acknowledged; even ideas and organization derived from previous personal work or another’s need to be acknowledged.
• Always proofread finished work to be sure that quotation marks or footnotes or other references were not inadvertently omitted. Know the source of each citation.
• Save their notes and drafts of papers as evidence of original work.
• Not submit the same work for more than one class without first obtaining the permission of both professors.

Academic Honors

Dean’s List

The Dean’s List is an academic honor awarded to undergraduate students who achieve a GPA of 3.7 or higher (fall term only for January graduates and both fall and spring terms for all other students) in at least 28 graded credits with no grades of IP/IF/I or P.

Latin Honors

Students meeting the requirement of having completed at least 64 credits toward the degree (in weighted grades) in residence in Steinhardt will be eligible for consideration. Latin Honors will be determined by GPA distribution, so that:

• Summa cum laude is limited to the top 5% of the graduating class
• Magna cum laude is limited to the top 10% of the graduating class
• Cum laude is limited to the next 15% of the graduating class

For more information about Latin Honors, visit: nyu.edu/registrar/graduation/latin-honors.html

Honors in MCC

Undertaking the Honors Program is an exciting and demanding opportunity for students with outstanding academic records and a serious intellectual curiosity about the discipline. The program prepares and guides students to pursue original, independent research under the supervision of a full-time faculty member during the senior year. Producing an honors thesis is a challenging experience that can reap many benefits, including close mentorship from a faculty member, the opportunity to further explore a specific intellectual question or issue that piques one’s curiosity, and the development of strong research, writing, and critical thinking skills that can strengthen a student’s portfolio in graduate school or professional setting.

A program of this caliber often represents the most defining and culminating experience of one’s undergraduate study.

Connections Outside the Classroom

We encourage students to participate actively in the social and academic life of MCC. Students should consider joining the student organizations coordinated through the Department and attending our events, which take place throughout the year. Contact any advisor for information on how to get involved in these programs.

NYU Comm Club and the Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA) are run by MCC students and are open to all NYU students. These groups provide networking opportunities through an array of academic, social, and cultural activities, including industry panels, screenings, and site visits to media companies.

The annual Alumni Media Panel is a unique opportunity for current students to speak with recent MCC alumni about their career paths. Alumni offer career advice, and strategies for students seeking work in a variety of fields.

Study Abroad

We strongly encourage all students to study abroad during their time at NYU. The university has many study abroad sites, which students can attend for course credit: Accra, Abu Dhabi, Berlin, Buenos Aires, Florence, London, Madrid, Paris, Prague, Shanghai, Sydney, Tel Aviv, and Washington DC.

In addition to these semester-long programs, our Department leads summer abroad courses which count as upper-level courses. More information can be obtained from advisors and the MCC website.

Global Media Scholars Program

MCC’s Global Media Scholars (GMS) program immerses students in the study of media and globalization through NYU’s academic sites abroad. The centerpiece of the program is a two-semester sequence starting the spring of students’ sophomore year at their choice of NYU campuses in Paris or Prague followed by a second semester in the fall of students’ junior year at their choice of NYU campuses in Buenos Aires or Shanghai. Finally, students will take part in a special Senior Media Seminar capstone course during the January (Intersession) term of their senior year.

Freshmen will be invited to apply. Contact an academic advisor for details.

We partner with The Center for Communication to connect students to a wide variety of leading media innovators. We host their distinguished panelists multiple times a year, providing an insider’s view of the media industry.

MCC honors students present their independent research during our Honors Thesis Presentation evening. The event offers participants the opportunity to hone their presentation skills and allows attendees to learn about the academic interests and methodologies explored by their peers.

The MCC Media Lab is a digital media incubator and learning space overseen by a collective comprised of faculty and students within the department. The lab is located on the 7th floor of the East Building at 239 Greene Street, providing space where students can learn and create with digital media platforms and software. It includes a computer lab with media equipment available to students enrolled in affiliated MCC courses. With these resources and focus on practice-based pedagogy, the lab aims to offer a supportive, experimental environment where students will be introduced to digital media theory and practice including software and programming.

Internships

As the media capital of the world, New York City offers numerous internship opportunities. The department has built strong ties with companies of all kinds, including leading media conglomerates, cultural institutions, tech start-ups, and non-profit organizations.

The MCC internship program promotes the integration of academic theory with practical experience of the rapidly-changing media landscape.

MCC hosts a password-protected internship database of available positions that is searchable by field of interest, date posted, company name, and compensation. New listings are added weekly.

For advice on securing an internship, eligibility requirements for earning course credit, current internship postings, and career resources consult: steinhardt.nyu.edu/mcc/internships/credit

Note: Students must be of junior or senior status to intern for credit (64 credits completed).
