Recitations: Thurs, 12:30-1:45PM or Thurs, 3:30-4:45PM
Professor Jonathan Friedman

All undergraduate students from all schools are welcome to enroll in this course. This course satisfies a restricted elective requirement for the minor in Global and Urban Education Studies.

The course examines the conceptual and empirical work on the social, cultural, and economic aspects of globalization and their implications for education. We shall explore education in light of: 1) the increasing de-territorialization of cultural formations; 2) the emergence of global markets along with the post-nationalization of the production and distribution of goods and services, including knowledge-intensive work; 3) new information and communication technologies which are reshaping the structure and meaning of work, belonging and community; and 4) unprecedented population movements and immigration. We shall examine recent conceptual work in globalization and its relationships to human experience with a focus on educational institutions and youth.
