Assistant/Associate Professor of Communicative Sciences and Disorders, Tenure-Track/Tenured
Communicative Sciences and Disorders

New York University’s Steinhardt School of Culture, Education, and Human Development invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant or Tenured Associate Professor in Communicative Sciences and Disorders to begin in September 2017. The appointed faculty member will be part of the Department of Communicative Sciences and Disorders.

NYU Steinhardt has one-of-a-kind integration of education, communication, health, and the arts, with eleven departments, seventeen research centers and institutes, 292 full-time faculty, and close to six thousand students. We are committed to substantially increasing the proportion of our faculty from historically underrepresented groups as we strive to create the most intellectually diverse, inclusive, and equitable institution that we can. The Department of Communicative Sciences and Disorders (CSD) is going through an exciting period of growth in academic offerings and in increased research productivity. The department grants undergraduate, master’s, and doctoral degrees, and has a state-of-the-art in-house Speech-Language and Hearing Clinic. In addition to these residential degree programs, we are launching a distance education MS program in Fall 2016.

Position Description: We are seeking candidates who can augment and extend the current research strengths of the department and who have strong research and academic potential. The specific field of specialization for this position is open.

Responsibilities: Conduct research, develop and/or maintain an independent research program, seek external funding, and mentor student research; teach undergraduate, master’s, and doctoral students; participate in faculty meetings, serve on committees, and provide other service to the University.

Qualifications: Doctoral degree in Communicative Sciences and Disorders, Speech and Hearing Sciences or equivalent; a demonstrated record of published, peer-reviewed research and demonstrated or strong potential for developing an externally-funded research program. Strong candidates will have CCC-SLP certification.

NYU’s dynamic Global Network University includes NYU Abu Dhabi, NYU Shanghai, and international programs and academic centers around the world. NYU Steinhardt faculty may have the opportunity to engage in research and teaching at these global study and research sites.

Applications: Candidates should apply by online submission of a letter of application, curriculum vitae, research statement, teaching statement, three letters of reference, and a representative sample of peer-reviewed research articles (up to 3).
