Note to Teachers: The school year in South Korea is different than the school year in New York. It begins in March and ends in February. This information should be taken into account when determining appropriate grade placement for newly arrived students from Korea.
KOREAN LANGUAGE AND WRITING:

Korean is the official language of both North and South Korea. It is also spoken in the Northeastern part of China. Korean is a member of the Ural-Altaic language group that includes Turkic, Mongolic, Tungusic, Finnish, Hungarian, and Japanese languages.

Some features of the Korean language are:
- The Korean alphabet consists of 24 letters; 10 vowels and 14 consonants;
- Word order in Korean follows the pattern subject/object/verb;
- The articles “the” and “a” do not exist in Korean;
- Korean has no grammatical gender markers or plural markers.

THE KOREAN ALPHABET

Consonants:

- ㄱ (g, k), ㄴ (n), ㄷ (d, t), ㄹ (r or l),
- ㅁ (m), ㅂ (b, p), ㅅ (s), ㅊ (ng), ㅈ (j),
- ㅊ (ch), ㅋ (k), ㅌ (t), ㅍ (p), ㅎ (h)

Vowels:

- ㅏ (a), ㅑ (ya), ㅓ (eo), ㅕ (yeo), ㅗ (o),
- ㅛ (yo), ㅜ (u), ㅠ (yu), ㅡ (eu), ㅣ (i)

Note to Teachers: Korean English language learners may have difficulty pronouncing words in English because many English consonant sounds do not exist in the Korean language. The “th” sound in thunder, then and clothes is an example. In addition, one symbol (letter) represents both the “l” and the “r” sound in Korean. The pronunciation of the letter depends on its position in the word. This also causes difficulty for Korean students learning English.

The following chart provides some useful phrases in Korean that will help create a welcoming and supportive environment for your Korean English language learners.

KOREAN LANGUAGE PROGRAMS IN NEW YORK CITY:

- Dual Language Program at PS 32

PS 32, located in Flushing, Queens, is the site of a Korean-English Dual Language Program. The program started in 2005 with one kindergarten dual language class. Currently the program has expanded through the fourth grade, with one dual language class at each grade level.

Dual language programs are bilingual programs that provide half of the instruction in English and half of the instruction in the native language of the ELLS participating in the program. Students become bicultural and fluent in both languages.

Students, parents and staff celebrate the Korean New Year at PS 32.

Students are learning Korean in PS 32’s kindergarten dual language class.
• Foreign Language Program at MS 142

Under the Foreign Language Assistance Program (FLAP), schools are provided with funding to teach languages other than English and their cultures as part of the school’s foreign language program. MS 142, located in District 11 in the Bronx, applied for and was awarded a FLAP grant to teach Korean as its foreign language.

These students at MS 142 are participating in the Korean Tea Ceremony, a tradition which has been practiced in Korea for over one thousand years. The focus of this ceremony is the enjoyment of tea in a natural, relaxed, yet formal setting. Panyaro, a green tea, is usually served.

Students are wearing traditional Korean dress known as Hanbok. The top, which is short for women and girls and longer for men and boys, is called jeogori. The girls are wearing skirts called chima, while the boys are wearing baggy pants called baji.
• Foreign Language Program at the East West School of International Studies

The East West School of International Studies prepares students for professional careers in an international world by providing a firm academic foundation and a thorough understanding of the Asian world. An important part of their education and preparation includes the study of Chinese, Japanese or Korean. Students become proficient in the language and thoroughly knowledgeable about the cultures and customs related to the language that they have chosen to study.

CULTURE:

- Religion

Among the many religions practiced in Korea, the four major religions are Buddhism, Christianity, Confucianism, and Shamanism.

Some interesting facts about these religions are:

- Buddhism was the official religion of Korea during the Shilla Dynasty. Many temples that were built during that time are still standing today;
- Christianity was introduced to Korea during the 17th Century and gained its followers through hospitals and universities;
- Although Confucianism is considered an ethical system, its ideologies are infused throughout Korea;
- Shamanism is the oldest and has the smallest number of followers.

• Family

Traditional Korean families are based on patriarchal rule where men provide for their families and women care for the home and children. Although there has been some shifting of traditional gender roles in Korea, women must still care for the home and children even though they are currently part of the work force.

Some special features about Korean families are:

- Korean children must respect their parents and grandparents, do well in school and reciprocate and care for their parents when they become adults.
- Korean parents place a high value on education and hard work, therefore, poor academic performance is not tolerated.
- It is not uncommon to see Koreans living in extended households. In particular, the paternal grandparents may be living with the family.

• Customs and Manners

Korean customs and manners tend to be very formal, proper, and respectful, especially towards elders. The code of honorifics is infused throughout Korean customs and manners. For example:

- Minors must bow their heads when greeting an elder.
- People may not be called by their first name unless they have given you their permission.
- Koreans are expected to take care of their aging parents…

• Cultural Dos and Don’ts

Do...
- remove your shoes when entering a Korean house.
- pass and receive objects with your right hand (supported by the left hand at the wrist or forearm) or with two hands.
- slightly bow your head when greeting a Korean as a sign of respect.

Don’t...
- compare Korea with Japan.
- call a Korean by their given name unless given permission.
- touch or pat a Korean who is not a relative or close friend.
- expect an apology when shoved, bumped or jostled in the street.
- point with your index finger.

• Korean Holidays

The Koreans follow the Gregorian calendar for everyday business and the lunar calendar for major holidays.

A very important holiday in Korea is the Lunar New Year. During this holiday, most people visit their families to wish each other a blessed year.

The second most important holiday in Korea is the Korean Thanksgiving called Chu-Seok. Koreans spend many weeks preparing for this special holiday when ancestral worship ceremonies take place.

• Korean Cuisine

Korean food is known for its various spices. The basic spices consist of red pepper, green onion, soy sauce, bean paste, garlic, ginger, mustard, vinegar, and wine.

Korean meals are usually served in multiple settings which consist of many side dishes such as soup, vegetables, meat, or fish. These settings, or side dishes, are referred to as “chop”. For example, you may be served a 3-chop, 5-chop, 7-chop, 9-chop, or 12-chop meal which will consist of the indicated number of side dishes.
