This unique, transatlantic, and highly innovative 47-credit Master of Arts program combines two semesters at NYU in Paris and two semesters in New York at the Steinhardt School. The two semesters spent in Paris allow students to immerse themselves in French language and culture as a means to improving and refining their language skills and socio-cultural competence. Students work closely with French pedagogues in the field of foreign language acquisition, drawing on the expertise of the Département de Didactique du Français Langue Étrangère (Department of Teaching French as a Foreign Language) of the University of Paris III-Sorbonne Nouvelle, as well as the Institut de Linguistique et de Phonétique Générales et Appliquées (Institute of General & Applied Linguistics & Phonetics) through NYU in Paris.

Specialists in the field of foreign language acquisition and authors of language textbooks are among the faculty from NYU in Paris and from French universities who mentor students closely and guide them through a critical reflection of teaching and learning. Areas of academic inquiry include foreign language instruction, grammar, phonetics, socio- and psycho-linguistics, contemporary French civilization, French literature, the history of ideas, teaching pedagogy, and the teaching of French as a foreign language in France.

During their two semesters in Paris, degree candidates observe French language classes at various levels and interact closely with teachers and students.

COURSE OFFERINGS AT NYU IN PARIS
- Stylistics and Semantics of Written French
- Advanced Workshop in Contemporary French
- Applied Phonetics and Spoken Contemporary French
- French Cultural History: French Perspectives on a Multicultural Education
- Teaching Foreign Languages: Theory to Practice
- Applied Methodology of Teaching French as a Foreign Language
- Independent Guided Reading and Research

COURSE OFFERINGS AT THE STEINHARDT IN NYC
- Inquiries in Teaching and Learning
- Adolescent Development: Theory and Research
- Evaluating Students with Disabilities in Middle Childhood and Adolescent Settings
- Intercultural Perspectives in Multilingual Multicultural Education
- Second Language Acquisition: Theory and Research
- Second Language Evaluation and Assessment
- Advanced Individual Project in Multilingual Multicultural Studies
- The Social Responsibilities of Teachers: Drug and Alcohol Education/Child Abuse Identification, and School Violence Prevention
- Supervised Student Teaching in Foreign Language: 7-12

M.A. DEGREE REQUIREMENTS
Students must enroll for full-time study (at least 12 points) for the two semesters at NYU in Paris. Students may complete remaining course work at the Washington Square campus on a full- or part-time basis.
Why pursue an M.A. degree in Teaching French as a Foreign Language at New York University?

This one-of-a-kind program combines a full year of study in Paris where students hone their language skills and enhance their knowledge of French culture and one year in New York City offering students a true multidisciplinary approach to teaching French as a foreign language. Students completing this two-year M.A. program are eligible for an initial certification in New York State as a teacher of French, grades 7–12.

What are the strengths of the program?

Students work with experts in their fields on both sides of the Atlantic. NYU in Paris is known for its academic rigor and the Steinhardt School for its expertise in pedagogy.

What special resources offer students an enriched experience?

Opportunities to observe language and culture classes taught in French schools as well as at NYU in Paris, to experience a variety of methodologies for the teaching of languages, to obtain internships in French schools, and to work with a very diverse group of middle-school and high-school students offers candidates a rich educational and cultural experience.

Who teaches the courses?

Specialists and scholars in their respective disciplines are among the faculty from NYU in Paris, French universities, and NYU Steinhardt who teach the courses in this program.

Can I pursue this program as a part-time student?

You must be a full-time student during the first year at NYU in Paris, but you may complete the remaining coursework on the Washington Square campus on a part-time or full-time basis.

Does the program offer financial aid?

All students enrolled in this program will receive a 30% tuition reduction. Some paid internships in Paris may also be available. Citizens and permanent residents of the U.S. should complete and submit a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) to receive consideration for student loans. Non-U.S. citizens should visit www.nyu.edu/nancial.aid/international.php for additional financial aid information.