Course description

In this course, students will develop an understanding of the impact of policies and the provision of services on the health disparities in reproductive health care. Within a framework of reproductive justice, students will examine the background and development of family planning, prenatal care, HIV/AIDS and abortion services in the United States as they relate to gender roles, attitudes about sexuality, institutional racism and health care service delivery. Students will develop analytical skills as well as the latest techniques for health education as they examine the most challenging issues and current research in the field of reproductive health.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

At the end of this course, students will be able to:

1. Define healthy sexuality and describe its relationship to reproductive health care
2. Demonstrate knowledge and understanding of the critical issues related to reproductive health care in the United States
3. Exhibit health education skills associated with reproductive health care
4. Describe the impact of U.S. public policies on the provision of reproductive health care

PRIMARY READINGS

The Boston Women's Health Book Collective. Our Bodies, Ourselves. A new edition for a new era. Simon and Schuster. 2005

Solinger, Rickie, Beggars and Choosers: How the Politics of Choice Shapes Adoption, Abortion, and Welfare in the United States. Hill and Wang, 2001

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

1. Required reading prior to class
2. Regular attendance and class participation
3. Term paper: Each student will be asked to submit a brief description of the proposed topic for the final paper no later than the class on October 1. The final paper topic should deal with a pressing issue/problem/question or controversy in the field of reproductive health. This description should include:
 - the problem statement,

- what makes this an important issue in women's health,
- what are the controversial aspects and the different perspectives on the issue, and
- what are some resources for research on the different positions on this issue.

Potential sources of information, i.e. internet sites, books, journal articles

The final paper should include:

- 1) the significance of the issue/problem/question,
- 2) the background information,
- 3) a brief narrative about what is known about the issue/problem/question, and the different perspectives on the issue,
- 4) an analysis of the issue from the evidence presented.

Only one person can choose a specific problem or question. If more than one person chooses a topic, you may be asked to find another one. The paper should be well researched, but not more than 10 pages in length, not including the bibliography. The paper is due no later than December 3. In addition, you will be asked to make a 5 to 10 minute presentation on the major findings in your paper in one of the last classes in the semester.

4. Class Presentation: Students are expected to present a summary of their paper within 7-10 minutes (depending on class size) on December 10. The presentation should briefly state the topic, what is controversial about the topic, a discussion and conclusion. It is suggested that students practice their presentation before class to be certain of conforming to the time constraints. The presentation shouldn't be read, however students can and should use overheads to stress the main points.
5. Journal/Newspaper Article(s): In addition to the assigned reading, each student is expected to find one journal article taken from one of the journals suggested below or a series of newspaper articles on a class topic and bring a short (one page) typed discussion of the content. These articles should identify current research related to the class topic. The student should be prepared to discuss the article and its relevance to the readings for the class.

GRADE BREAKDOWN

Class Participation: 25%

Class participation is very important. Students who have not done the readings and participated actively in class will be graded accordingly. The instructor must be informed if a student is going to miss a class.

Journal/newspaper article(s): 25%

Paper: 30%

Presentation: 20%
