Developing Peace: Education for Mutual Understanding

Fourth Annual Student Conference of the International Education Program, New York City

Friday, March 6, 2009

Conference Theme

Schools — as gatekeepers for the transmission of knowledge — must play a role in teaching for peace and mutual understanding at local, national, and global levels. Presenters at this graduate student conference will explore how educators, education systems, politicians, community leaders, philanthropists, and students alike promote active citizenship, social justice, tolerance, and respect for human life within and among nations.
