Field Consultation
1 credit

Students will meet together on the following dates: (Room to be determined) 3:45-4:45. Other consultations will be conducted individually.

October 1, 2009
October 22, 2009
November 12, 2009
December 3, 2009

Using field site assignments as arranged through the Office of Clinical Studies, this one-credit course will be designed to complement-supplement “What are Schools For?” which students are taking in lieu of Inquiries into Teaching and Learning III.

The Teaching and Learning Field Guide and the associated Essential Questions will structure the observations and note-taking for the students and form the basis of our discussions during group meetings. We will focus on 3 of the 4 Domains:

- Classroom Environment
- Planning and Preparation
- Instruction

Students and instructor will co-design the final paper as an individual written project to help the student reflect on emerging beliefs about teaching and learning based on the semester’s field and course work, along with analysis of their own individual and cultural learning history.
