Steinhardt School of Culture, Education, and Human Development

Student's Guide

For Undergraduate and Graduate Students

2013-2014

About the NYU Steinhardt Student Guide, from the Associate Dean for Student Affairs

Undergraduate and Graduate Students enrolled in the Steinhardt School of Culture, Education, and Human Development, your guide includes information about enrollment and student services to help you get connected and be involved. The academic policies and procedures, also referred to as the School's formal rules of conduct, will help you to stay informed. Use your NYU Steinhardt Student Guide together with the Steinhardt School Bulletins steinhardt.nyu.edu/bulletin, your departmental/program handbooks, and other important publications to become actively engaged in our academic community. Familiarize yourselves, as well, with NYU Student Community Standards nyu.edu/life/student-life/student-communitystandards and University Life www.nyu.edu/life

As you move into your roles as students in our diverse and global community, in addition to your department and academic advisor, Steinhardt's Office of Student Affairs is a first-stop for answers and assistance with questions, concerns, issues and academic support. We work collaboratively with faculty, staff, students and University colleagues to provide a broad array of programs, services, and opportunities that:

- are responsive to the dynamic nature of the educational process;
- enrich the educational experience for the School's diverse and global undergraduate and graduate student population;
- embody the School's concern for all phases of a student's development and the range of student needs.

Get connected. Be involved. Stay informed. It takes all of us to build and sustain a healthy community of teaching and learning.

Patricia M Carey, Ph.D
Associate Dean

II. Statement on Academic Integrity

A. “Your degree should represent genuine learning.”

The relationship between students and faculty is the keystone of the educational experience in the Steinhardt School at New York University. This relationship takes an honor code for granted. Mutual trust, respect, and responsibility are foundational requirements. Thus, how you learn is as important as what you learn. A University education aims not only to produce high quality scholars but also to cultivate honorable citizens.

Academic integrity is the guiding principle for all that you do; from taking exams, making oral presentations, to writing term papers. It requires that you recognize and acknowledge information derived from others, and take credit only for ideas and work that are yours.

You violate the principle of academic integrity when you

- cheat on an exam;
- submit the same work for two different courses without prior permission from your professors;
- receive help on a take-home examination that calls for independent work;
- plagiarize.

To view the entire statement and download your copy, visit www.steinhardt.nyu.edu/policies/academic_integrity.

III. New York University Anti-Harassment Policy

New York University is committed to maintaining a learning and working environment that is free of bias, prejudice, and harassment—an environment that supports, nurtures, and rewards career and educational advancement on the basis of ability and performance. Harassment based upon race, gender and/or gender identity or expression, color, religion, age, national origin, ethnicity, disability, veteran or military status, sexual orientation, marital status, citizenship status, or any other legally protected basis is prohibited by law and undermines the character and purpose of the University. Such harassment is illegal and against University policy, and will not be tolerated.

Students in the Steinhardt School may refer instances of harassment to the Associate Dean for Student Affairs, Pless Hall, 2nd Floor, 212 998 5065.

To learn more, visit www.nyu.edu/eo/anti-harass-policy.pdf

IV. Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 (FERPA)

Among its several purposes, the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 (FERPA) was enacted to

- protect the privacy of students' educational records;
- establish the rights of students to inspect and review their educational records;
- provide students with an opportunity to allow inaccurate or misleading information in their educational records to be corrected.

For further information, please contact the Office of Student Affairs, Pless Hall, 2nd Floor, 212 998 5065, www.steinhardt.nyu.edu/students and visit www.nyu.edu/registrar/university-policies/ferpa.html.

V. Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA)

The Henry and Lucy Moses Center for Students with Disabilities provides comprehensive services and programs for students with hearing and visual impairments, mobility impairments, learning disabilities and attention deficit disorders, chronic illnesses, and psychological impairments. The Moses Center functions to determine qualified disability status and to assist students in obtaining appropriate accommodations and services.

For further information, please contact The Moses Center, 726 Broadway, 2nd Floor 212 998 4980 or visit www.nyu.edu/csd/.

VI. Student Complaint Procedure

A. Students whose complaints relate to academic or nonacademic matters and who seek a review of their complaints should follow the procedures outlined below within 15 days from the time the action occurred and/or the grade was posted. If a student has exhausted the School's procedures for student complaints and believes that the School's procedure and/or process for receiving the complaint were not implemented as set forth in the Steinhardt School Student Complaint Procedure, he/she may also seek consultation through the ombudsperson. The ombudsperson, a tenured professor who is elected by students, attempts to achieve equitable resolutions to student complaints by ensuring that processes and procedures are followed.

1. Student complaints begin with the person against whom the complaint is being made. If the issue involves the instructor of a course, the complaint is with the instructor. The student shall first contact the instructor and attempt to resolve the complaint. Pertinent documentation should accompany the complaint.
2. If the complaint is not resolved at the level of the instructor, the student should schedule an appointment with the program director, the next level for the review of complaints.
3. If the complaint is not resolved at the level of the program director, the next level of appeal is the department chair. The department chair, at his or her discretion, may call a meeting of the instructor, the program director, and the student. If resolution of the complaint is achieved at either stage two or three, the program director or department chair, respectively, will send a confirmatory memo to all who have been involved.

B. If there is no satisfactory resolution of the student complaint at the departmental level in the judgment of the student or if the nature of the complaint involves a personal or confidential matter, the student may proceed as follows:

1. The student may bring the complaint to the attention of the Associate Dean for Student Affairs. The Associate Dean is responsible for administering the student complaint procedure and may, when appropriate, make recommendations for the resolution of student complaints.
2. As a final level of appeal, the student may request a review of the complaint by the Vice Dean for Academic Affairs, who may then refer it to the Dean of the Steinhardt School.
3. A student may also speak with the Ombudsperson, an associate/full tenured professor, elected by students to attempt to achieve equitable resolutions to student complaints by ensuring that processes and procedures are followed. Thus, when a student, who has completed the above procedure, believes that procedures and process for reviewing complaints were not implemented as set forth, he/she may consult the Ombudsperson.

VII. Student Discipline Within the Steinhardt School

A. School Jurisdiction

Policies on Student Discipline within the School work in tandem with University Policies and Procedures that inform student conduct, academic regulations and established practices. Thus, in its work, the Committee on Discipline is concerned with the development and welfare of each student as well as for the welfare and standards of the School. Areas of school disciplinary jurisdiction include the following:

1. Violation of Academic Integrity, e.g. cheating, plagiarism, and forgery of academic documents.
2. Disruption of the academic process and/or academic facilities, including interference with access to facilities and disruption of the classroom.
3. Library violations, including failure to return books or destruction of library materials.
4. Physical detention or restraint of a student, instructor, staff member, or administrator while that person is attempting to exercise his/her duties.

B. Informal Resolution

When a charge of misconduct is reported, the Associate Dean for Student Affairs, in cooperation with the relevant parties including the student(s), shall try to resolve the matter on an informal basis, e.g. without convening a panel/hearing.

C. Committee on Student Discipline

1. If the matter cannot be resolved accordingly, the Associate Dean will convene the Committee on Discipline, which will conduct a hearing to review the facts and related evidence/information, make a determination as to the responsibility of the student for violations of school/university policies, and impose sanctions as deemed appropriate.
2. Composition. The Committee on Discipline is composed of ad hoc committees as the number of cases warrant. Each ad hoc committee will be composed of two full-time faculty members, two undergraduate students, and two graduate students. The Director of Counseling and Student Services serves as an ex officio member.

D. Initiating Disciplinary Proceedings

1. Any member of the faculty, administration, or staff or any student may file disciplinary complaints against any student(s) for violation(s) of University rules of conduct and/or policies of the Steinhardt School with the Associate Dean for Student Affairs. Notification will include names of parties, dates, a description of circumstances leading to the action, and any other pertinent information.
2. After receiving the complaint, the Associate Dean will convene the committee (see section C.2. above), assemble requisite materials, and schedule a hearing date.
3. Notification to the Student. The Student about whom a disciplinary complaint is filed will be notified by the Associate Dean in writing by registered mail and/or electronic mail, with returned receipt requested. The student will be told of the specific charges brought against him/her, including the name of person making the charge; the date, location, and circumstances on which the action is based; the place and date set for the hearing; and the procedures that will govern the hearing.

E. Conduct of the Hearing

To view the entire procedure, including conduct of the hearing and right of student appeal, visit www.steinhardt.nyu.edu/policies/procedures.

VII. Policy on Bullying, Threatening, and Other Disruptive Behavior

Academic communities exist to facilitate the process of acquiring and exchanging knowledge and understanding, to enhance the personal and intellectual development of its members, and to advance the interests of society. Essential to this mission is that all members of the University Community are safe and free to engage in a civil process of teaching and learning through their experiences both inside and outside the classroom. Accordingly, no student should engage in any form of behavior that interferes with the academic or educational process, compromises the personal safety or well-being of another, or disrupts the administration of University programs or services.

To view the entire policy including Guidelines for Response and Enforcement, visit www.nyu.edu/about/policies-guidelines-compliance/policies-and-guidelines/bullying--threatening--and-other-disruptive-behavior-guidelines.html
