

NYS BRONX BETAC AND LOWER HUDSON VALLEY BETAC AT FORDHAM UNIVERSITY IN COLLABORATION WITH
MANHATTAN/STATEN ISLAND BETAC AT HUNTER COLLEGE
PRESENT:

English Language Learners as Authors: Making the Connection between Reading and Writing

Presenters: Alma Flor Ada & F. Isabel Campoy

Alma Flor Ada and F. Isabel Campoy will share their experiences as authors and leaders in the field of bilingual education and literacy. Together they will lead a hands-on workshop focusing on the critical connection between wide, independent reading, and the writing process. They will draw from their recently published Authors in the Classroom: A Transformative Education Process and their other books and workshops to explore how using language to connect to everyday life inspires teachers, students and families to become life-long learners. Join other district and school administrators, ELL coordinators, teachers, and other literacy experts to share best practices in making the connection between reading and writing.

Special thanks to the American Reading Company for co-sponsoring this event.

Creators of the 100 Book Challenge®

Date: Wednesday, October 7, 2009

Time: 2:00pm—5:00pm

Place: Fordham University at Lincoln Center

Building and room number will be provided upon registration.

Registration: Participants must be registered for this workshop. To register, send an e-mail with “October 7th Workshop” in the subject line to bronxbetac@fordham.edu. Please include your name, position/title, school, and telephone number. You will receive confirmation upon registration.

Fordham University
NYS Bronx BETAC
2536 Hughes Avenue
Bronx, NY 10458
Phone: 718 817-0606
Fax: 718 817 0604
E-mail: bronxbetac@fordham.edu

